GANAPATIPULE SEMINAR 1998

Jai Shri Mataji

Dear country leader,

As far as we know there will not be a full India tour this year, there will however, be a Ganapatipule seminar from 22nd -30th December with a New Year's Puja in Kalwe, Bombay on the 31st December. Shri Mataji requested that everyone assemble in Bombay by 21st December. There will be a train to take people to Ratnagiri on the evening of 21st.

We will need individual names to book this train. In order to organise this it is necessary for each country to appoint a tour co-ordinator, preferably a person who has e-mail facility and fax. Please could the appointed person make themselves known to us immediately (details below). Shri Mataji has requested early information, therefore please send approximate numbers within the next 7 days.

The preliminary programme includes Christmas Puja on 25th December and marriages on 29th December. The cost for the Seminar is 600 pounds sterling, details of arrangements for payment will follow.

xxxviii. The happiness which arises from the contact of the senses and their objects, and which is like nectar at first but like poison at the end, is recorded to be 'passionate'.

791. When the senses and sense objects are united, O conqueror of wealth, this kind of happiness overflows its banks.
792. When a ruler visits a town a festival is held and money is borrowed for the celebration of a marriage.
793. Sugar and plantains taste equally sweet to the tongue of a sick man, and the poisonous bacnāga plant is pleasing to look at.
794. As the friendship of knaves, the company of whores and the strange feats of jugglers [are all attractive at first],
795. so the happiness of the self is fed by the sin of the union of the senses with their objects; but [the result is the same as that of] a swan dashing against a rocky place.
796. All such happiness comes to an end and even life may be destroyed and all accumulated merit is wasted.
797. All the pleasures which have been enjoyed vanish like a dream, leaving a man struck down by disaster.
798. Thus happiness of this kind brings about disaster in this world and turns to poison in the next.
799. If sense pleasures are given full rein they burn up the field of religious duty and enjoy a feast of sensual indulgence.
800. Sin becomes established and the sinner is cast into hell. Therefore this kind of happiness is an obstacle to reaching heaven.
801. There is a poison which by its name is sweet, but proves deadly in its effects. Similarly [there is a joy] that is sweet at first but in the end turns to bitterness.
802. O Pārtha, such is this happiness which is full of passion; therefore thou shouldst avoid any contact with it.
