FRIDAY 16th JULY '93

" Mother, thank You very much for the Realisation, Mother, thank You very much for making us understand how great we are,
Thank You very much for bringing all the blessings of the Divine,
Thank You very much for raising us higher,
much higher than from where we were,
Thank You very much for sustaining us
And for helping us to improve ourselves and correct ourselves,
Thank You very much, ultimately, that Mother,
You have come on this earth, taken Your birth and are working so hard for us, for all of us."

A TRIP TO THE INTERNATIONAL SAHAJA YOGA SCHOOL

Having just returned from a very enjoyable two-week stay at Dharamsala after delivering my children there, I am pleased to relay the news that each and every child at the school is settled and quite happy. I had left on the third day and was staying with a local family in Naddi village, then I was invited back since the children were settling well and my presence didn't cause a big disruption. For those of you who may not have heard the story, it is reported that the five Pandava Brothers and their wife, Draupadi (Vishnumaya), took their ascent to heaven in this very place. It is so vibrating that I heard Shri Mataji said once that She loves to go to Dharamsala School but finds it hard to get out of deep meditation once there!

The overall impression I received during my stay was that these children are enjoying the nature and each other's company immensely, they are growing and progressing well, and all the children mix with each other very well. A few children had some minor difficulties adjusting this year but by the time I reached the school, they were fine. Mr. Reddy is very pleased with the Australian children and commented that they were relatively more balanced on arrival and that the girls in particular were showing that inner Shakti strength and have settled quite quickly. Mr. Reddy, himself, is quite an amazing yogi and if there is even a slight thing going on with any child at the school, you can be sure that he will pick it up in short order. He and his wife, Radha (a homeopathic doctor), the resident nurse, the dorm aunties anduncles, the teaching staff, as well as Dr. Chakra in Dharamsala, watch them all very carefully. They obviously have a true love of their work, care deeply for the children and nurture them in that beautiful Indian way, and showed this guest loving heaps of hospitality!

I had ample opportunity to watch the children in different activities and they generally impressed me with their growth. There are quite a few characters there who can be rather a handful, but there is every type of personality imaginable. Any child which I had noticed to be somewhat quiet I watched, only to see that they were indeed happy and playing, eating and learning, but that they were discovering their own character and nature, their own Self, separate from the oppressive expectations and conditionings of their home environment. They are becoming their own gurus.

The children are given equal doses of absolute freedom and strict discipline appropriate to the various aspects of their daily routine. It was quite moving to see these little darlings learning to stand on their own two feet with confidence, dignity and self-esteem. They watch over each other, monitor each other's behavior and share everything (well, just about) with that absolute, unconditional love of a child. The children looked so small against the backdrop of the Himalayas, yet they reflected the very presence and potential of the mountains - they clearly belong there.

Something fun which they look forward to is that each senior at the school has a little brother or sister which they have in to sleep with them sometimes, give vibrations to, eat with, etc. and each child enjoys it very much.

Thanks to Shri Mataji we have this heavenly refuge for our children to grow properly in the vibrations without severe hindrance from the western condition. I am so grateful to have had this opportunity and I hope my doubtless trust and confidence in the School at Dharamsala is reflected here and in your own hearts.

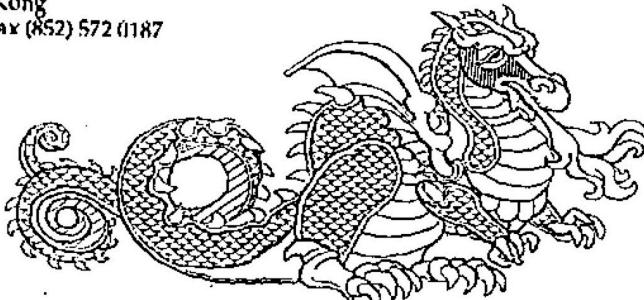

Jai Shri Mataji!!

- With love from Liallyn

RE: Follow up program

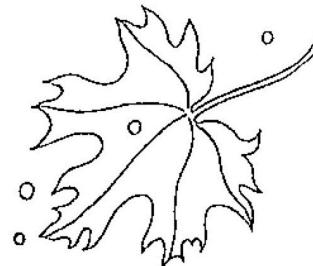

JAI SHRI MATAJI

Dear Yogis,

I thought that everyone in Australia would like to know that we had a very successful public program with over 330 people attending the Holistic Integration presentation with three guest speakers including Stephan.

We held the follow up program on Monday July 5 at a local hotel and were overjoyed with the response. Over 90 people attended and received their self realisation. The original function room was not big enough having capacity for only 50 people so the hotel kindly gave us a larger room at no extra cost. The vibrations were tremendous and most people felt the cool breeze. The audience was a mixture of Chinese, Indians and Westerners with some very deep seekers. Through our Holy Mother's love and attention Hong Kong is definitely changing for the better.

Much love from all in HK.
 Jai Shri Mataji.

A NOTE TO FUTURE TRAVELLERS TO OLD TEMPLE, DELHI:

Due to some unfortunate incidents in the recent past concerning non-Sahaja people landing at the Old Temple expecting accommodation, it has become necessary to make arrangements to stay at the Old Temple by contacting Dr. Nigham, the coordinator in Delhi, and by bringing with you a letter of introduction from your city/country leader. This way there will be no misunderstandings and they will know exactly when to expect you.

FAX FROM STEPHAN TAYLOR: SHRI MATAJI'S CONFERENCE IN PARIS.

To Her Holiness Shri Mataji Nirmala Devi,

From His Excellency the Ayatollah Mehdi Rouhani

13th JULY 1993.

The message you gave for the world peace is very encouraging for the future of Humanity. Please find here the expression of my highest gratitude. In this message, you expressed the desire of an era of peace and reconciliation. The whole Humanity is longing for the realm of peace in the world.

From my side, I can assure you that the muslim world in its totality agrees with this noble human aspiration that you preach. For this aspiration not to remain a wishful thinking, it should be accompanied with a detailed, realistic and efficient plan.

Our sacred scripture, the Koran, says:

"O people of the book, you who got the Scripture, let us take in a good formula, common to you and us: let us adore one Single God, without associating anything to Him. (Verse 3-63)"

thus revealing the Prophets' mission and mystery, and the raison d'être of all the religions, teaching the Humanity to fill this Universe with bliss and to remove, by a sincere love for one another, all hypocrisy and discord, so that everyone's mind being at peace and everyone's quest for perfection keeping growing, the following axiom become true:

"The man will reach such a level (of perfection) that he will only see God (everywhere)", despite the undeniable reality.

Looking back to history, we notice that all the conflicts that had dreadful consequences for Humanity, took birth in differences of rites, beliefs and fanaticism and were nourished by them. That is a pitiable reality, when all the initiators of monotheist religions were only longing for peace and security worldwide. Their preachers were only aiming at the raising of the Spirit, the purification of Man, the noble spirituality and the brotherhood of all souls.

Members of this congress¹ are convinced, more than anybody else, that monotheist religions are part of a single chain, every link of which is complementary to the other, brings it up to strength and together with it forms an indissoluble unity.

The Divine Message is, in the heart of hearts, unique; and if some differences might appear in its form, this is due to incidents of time, places and evolution of Man. God never compelled his creatures to follow two different paths and never asked them to resort to war.

The Koran, our sacred book, considers that a mere doubt about the genuiness of other Holy Scriptures is a deviation from the Islamic belief.

The Verse 136 of Surah 2 of the Koran explicitely says: "Believing in God for the Muslims induces believing in Moise's Holy Scriptures, Abraham's (Friend of Allah) and Jesus's (Spirit of Allah) and in other revealed books."

This verse considers the Divine Revelation as the trunk of a same tree, the branches of which are the different religions, wether ancient or new, and the source of which is unique. According to the Koran, the Man, emanating from Reality, will come back to his Source: God.

This is a certitude, which has to lead to friendship and mutual tolerance between human beings.

In messianic messages, provided my references are correct, one can find more or less the same commandments. In my opinion, and I hope you will agree with it, if monotheists disagree about the Divine Message, the reason is that they misinterpreted it, because of their incompetence or ignorance of what the real Revelation is. If these misunderstandings and false interpretations disappeared, there would be no seed left for the coming back of religious conflicts and aggressive fanaticism.

What one can assert, is that Universal Peace cannot be achieved through strength nor anybody can pay for it and that the only path to this peace is bringing hearts together. If it is not possible to guide every human idea to the same way, let it be possible at least to find meeting points and a link between the spirits.

May I humbly express that according to me all revealed religions have got similar or common commandments and precepts, the knowledge of which is the best way to bring people together.

Almost all monotheists do not know at all, or very little about the identity or the likeness of these precepts. Thus, they not only miss this community of thought but in many historical occasions, they face each other and fight as real enemies.

For all these reasons, I would like the organisers of this conference to pay attention to few questions that matter in relations between monotheists. By this doing, my only aim is to contribute to the improvement of these relations.

I suggest the following:

1- The meeting of a special commission, composed by specialists in monotheist matters, in order to point out the convergences of revealed religious scriptures. Should such an interconfessional organisation be founded, made out of representatives of these religions, chosen among theologians, its purpose would be the printing of a multilingual opuscule which would contain these commandments and precepts with their comments.

This book would, we are convinced, enormously contribute to provide the followers of these religions with a clear idea of what our common wealths are. This brochure would constitute a kind of "key for peace and security" aiming at their unity.

2- The convocation of a world congress gathering monotheists aiming at the elaboration of a chart for peace, reconciliation and mutual understanding.

3- Taking the initiative to celebrate every year the religious days of the other community. This would be an opportunity to bring the communities together.

Should the congress agree with these suggestions, I might have a few more to submit. I am convinced of the complexity of such an issue which can't be solved in one day. However, in order to complete it, one should first start.

Mr Mehdi Rouhani

Mr. Mehdi Rouhani NOT ONLY got his realization, but came to Mother's Programme and brought on of his colleagues. He has expressed a wish to see Her again !!!

In doing this he is taking a great risk as fundamentalism is the epitome of intolerance.
